Ready to Work & Essential Soft Skills Credentials

Preparing learners and job seekers for career and life success

Earn the credentials that work for you.

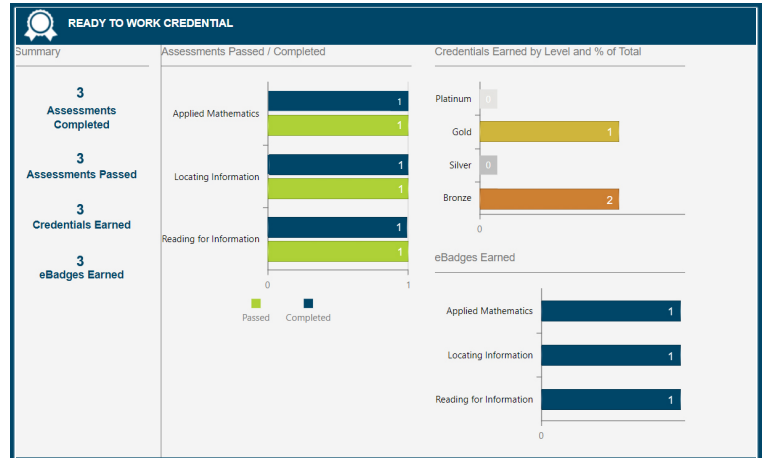

WIN Learning offers e-learning solutions including Ready to Work and Essential Soft Skills courseware, assessments, and credentials as an important foundation for creating a more effective and efficient system to prepare learners of all ages for career success.

States are preparing students for college and career readiness by providing all learners with multiple pathways to success and engaging employers in these systems.

What if you could equip learners with the academic and essential soft skills while providing earned badges and credentials?

WIN Learning's Career Readiness System is being used to support district, workforce, and state level career readiness initiatives.

Visit winlearning.com to see model implementations serving employers, K12 school systems, adult education, workforce development, juvenile detention centers, and correctional institutions.

A learner can monitor their progress by the number of eBadges and credentials earned. Once mastery is achieved, they have the option to print their Ready to Work and Essential Soft Skills certificates.

WIN Learning's Solution for Badging and Credentialing

Through the Career Readiness System's badging and credentialing feature, employers are able to identify job seekers with the right skills and attitude for the job and career success.

Badging

WIN Learning provides eBadges to learners in the online Career Readiness System. eBadges are earned when the learner completes the posttest of a level or module depending on the course. These eBadges are used as a progress monitoring tool to encourage learners to advance through the levels and modules. Once the learner obtains the appropriate eBadges, a courseware Certificate of Completion is earned, which shows that the learner has demonstrated basic knowledge in the skills covered in the courseware.

Credentialing

WIN Learning provides a next-generation credentialing approach to validate that learners and job seekers have mastered knowledge in the skills taught in the courseware. Providing one of the first combined credentialing solutions nationwide, WIN Learning's assessments measures mastery in the academic "hard" skills and the essential "soft" employability skills needed for success in the workplace. The Ready to Work and the Essential Soft Skills Credentials demonstrate that the learner has the right skills for success.
